

By age 6, kids think that boys are better than girls at computing and engineering (but not math)

Percentage of six-year-olds saying who is better at...

As girls age, their male-STEM bias increases, which could limit their future aspirations for fast-growing tech fields such as artificial intelligence.

Percentage saying who is better at computing

Source: The Development of Gender Stereotypes About STEM Abilities: A Meta-Analysis (2024)